The Lions Share: A Forty-Year Retrospective On The High School Experience and the Lost American Dream TOM HUBER AND Craig Schwab, Tom Huber

A 40 Year Retrospective about changes through the years on how differently we communicate and view the world around us. This book was given to graduates of Richmond Hill High School in Queens, New York at their 40th High School Reunion. Topics covered by the authors discuss changes to the neighborhood landscape as well as the many ways individuals today partake in our daily activities. The overall experience of how time has effected our ability to appreciate life has universal appeal that does not only effect a single group of graduates but all individuals curious about the changes in the quality of our choices. Whether the experiences associated with growing up were musical - political or emotional, the authors share their insights with a wide range of both comical and societal relevant stories.
