Written by Peng Yi, World Children's Literature: Reading and Classics is a book about classic works of children's literature in the world. It involves over 100 classic works from over 100 famous writers of children's literature in the world and over 400 beautiful pictures of their covers and illustrations. It comprehensively and systematically introduces the classics of children's literature in the past 200 years since the birth of Grimm's fairy tales in 1812. It is an encyclopaedia-style collection of world classics of children's literature. Thus, it can be considered as the most authoritative and professional reading direction of children's literature for children and adults with childish disposition. The book consists of two parts, Reading Children's Literature and Classic Children's Literature.
